DETAILED ACTION

Specification

The lengthy specification has not been checked to the extent necessary to determine the presence of all possible minor errors. Applicant's cooperation is requested in correcting any errors of which applicant may become aware in the specification.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over U.S. Patent No. 5,746,602 to Kikinis in view of U.S. Patent No. 5,752,880 to Gabai et al.

Kikinis discloses the claimed invention except for, regarding claim 12, the input interface further receiving from outside the electronic toy, first instructing information for instructing that predetermined control information having been stored in the memory should be replaced with the received control information, or second instructing information that the received control information should be additionally stored into the memory. However, Gabai et al. teaches an interactive electronic doll comprising the aforementioned limitations (see column 8, lines 49-62). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the doll of Kikinis, in view of Gabai et al., such that it would provide the doll of

Art Unit: 3712

Kikinis with the aforementioned limitations for the purpose of providing a variety of instructions to the doll to manipulate the stored information in the memory and the received control information.

Claims 13 and 14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kikinis in view of U.S. Patent No. 6,149,490 to Hampton et al.

Kikinis discloses the claimed invention except for, regarding claim 14, the computer or processor being provided in the electronic toy. However, Hampton et al. teaches an interactive electronic doll comprising the aforementioned limitation (see figs.1-22, and respective portions of the specification). Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify the doll of Kikinis, in view of Hampton et al., such that it would provide the doll of Kikinis with the aforementioned limitation for the purpose of enclosing the computer or processor within the toy doll for enhancing the mobility of the doll.
